BMW iX3

One of BMW's most significant launches is set to be the iX3, the first production vehicle based on the Neue Klasse platform. The iX3 debuts an all-new design for BMW, with an upright stance with vertically arranged kidney grilles and the headlamps integrated into the flat nose panel. The iX3 has flat surfaces everywhere, with clean lines and squared wheel arches. The rear houses large LED signature lamps, that look similar to wide profile kidney grilles. The interiors for this brand new BMW come with a squarish-steering, while the driver's display and most other readouts have been integrated into the wide display at the base of the windscreen, much like an HUD, while a 17.9-inch display handles all the necessary functions. The iX3 50 gets dual-motors, with 469bhp and a 0-100kmph time of 4.9 seconds while the claimed range sits at 800km.
