DANCE ▼

Going with the FLOW

Nrityagam Dance Village, Bengaluru, launches a month-long residency for dancers

In 2016, Odissi exponent Surupa Sen headed to the Baryshnikov Arts Center in New York to participate in a residency and returned with an experience of a lifetime. The freedom to experiment and immerse in her practice, with no strings attached, was inspiring. A decade later, she and Nrityagram's managing trustee Lynne Fernandez want to recreate that experience in India with their own fully-funded residency, Vihara. The aim, Sen says, is "to create a space where Indian classical dancers can experience uninterrupted time for practice, reflection, rehearsal, artistic exploration and renewal". Through the month-long programme, Fernandez hopes applicants take advantage of the

Courtesy: NRITYAGRAM

LEARNING THE CLASSICS
Surupa Sen (left) with a student; right, a dancer at a performance at Nrityagram

The Listicle

Upcoming musical performances you should not miss

◀ JUNE 6 | DOME, SVP Stadium, Mumbai

KLANGKUENSTLER PRESENTS OUTWORLD

German techno artist Klangkuenstler brings his OUTWORLD concept with an industrial rave experience. Known for hard-edged techno and underground aesthetics, he combines cinematic visuals with driving rhythms and high-intensity sound design.

▶ MAY 15-16 | NCPA, Mumbai; MAY 22-24 | Kamani Auditorium, Delhi; JUNE 7 | St. Andrews Auditorium, Mumbai

JAANE PEHCHAANE ANJANE

Written and directed by Gajendra Ahire, Jaane Pehchaane Anjane is a Hindi musical exploring loneliness, companionship and emotional resilience within an urban middle-class setting. Featuring music by Anu Malik and lyrics by Kausar Munir, the production stars Anupam Kher and Swaroop Sampat alongside a strong ensemble cast. Through interconnected lives marked by solitude and vulnerability, the play reflects on human connection with warmth, realism and emotional nuance.

