Conscious Patterns

Sansaar debuts Impressions, a bedding collection that swaps loud excess for conscious luxury. Moving beyond simple accents, these pieces position prints as the foundation of the modern Indian bedroom. The range features delicate florals, crisp geometrics and tonal abstracts designed to add depth without disrupting a room's harmony. The palette stays grounded in earthy neutrals, deep indigos, and muted blushes. Crafted from 100 per cent cotton using azo-free dyes, the fabric is breathable, moisture-absorbent and soft to the touch.

Wood, Wing and Wonder

Why settle for a static surface when your furniture can take flight? Intent Made's latest collection, Garden in Woods, reimagines the rigid discipline of marquetry as a poetic playground. Here, foundational checkerboard grids meet the whimsical flutter of hand-cut birds and butterflies, all rendered in the undyed, organic hues of solid wood. From soft oval centrepieces to architecturally fluted side tables, the range balances geometric order with the lightness of a living forest. It's all about material honesty, logical in construction yet deeply emotional in presence, inviting you to find the poetry within the grain.

The Gold Standard of Hardware

Who knew a door handle could hold the weight of two centuries? House of Jolly, India's architectural hardware titan since 1944, is proving that legacy is the ultimate luxury with its high-octane acquisition of Italian legends Enrico Cassina and Omporro. Led by Aditya and Akshay Bhargava, this isn't just an expansion. From Enrico Cassina's 19th-century neoclassical masterpieces to Omporro's precision-engineered noble metals, the collection brings a made in Italy soul to the Indian interior.
