THROWING A PRINT PARTY

The iconic designer duo brings their Araki aesthetic to life, proving that the ultimate summer accessory isn't a bag, it's the look of your home

By RIDHI KALE

If you thought your summer plans were limited to dodging heat waves and nursing iced lattes, think again. The poolside is no longer just a place to get wet; it's officially become a runway. SHIVAN & NARRESH, India's reigning duo of holiday chic, have decided that dressing the person isn't enough; they've gone ahead and dressed the entire home.

When the sun had barely announced its presence, the brand quickly swapped the garment rack for the pool deck, transforming a 100-foot outdoor lap pool in Shangri-La Eros, New Delhi into a living, breathing resort fantasy. Called the Palmera Pool Pop-Up, here the sunbeds are chicer than your favourite outfit and even the lifeguard chair has a high-fashion glow-up.

At the heart of this immersive universe is the Palmera print from the duo's 2018 Araki Series. Inspired by a trip to Japan, the design is a sophisticated mash-up of botanical elements and panther motifs set against a serene Sakura pink backdrop, spelling summer effortlessly.