SWEATING BY DESIGN

How India's gym floors are trading clunky iron for high-end Italian design

By RIDHI KALE

Breaking a sweat is no longer an ugly affair. India's fitness spaces are ditching fluorescent lights and rubber mats for luxury hospitality. At Hyderabad's IGYM, high-definition video walls and Italian engineered Technogym equipment turn workouts into contemporary wellness destinations. Meanwhile, premium real estate giants like DLF are weaving fitness into architectural luxury, creating holistic lifestyles with Pilates and outdoor pools. Even Delhi's Evolve uses AI-powered Technogym Checkups to calculate your 'Wellness Age'. Gone are the days when the gym was hidden in the back room; it is now the main design language of modern living spaces.
