Stitching a Statement

This new flagship boutique in Delhi puts the spotlight on bespoke decor and pretty furnishings

By RIDHI KALE

Imagine converting art into fabric, whimsy into wonderful objects and everyday things into something extraordinary. That is Shuchita Sancheti Garg in a nutshell. Now, she has brought that energy drenched in a striking crimson hue into the newly unveiled vVyom by Shuchita flagship store in Delhi. Over four months in the making, Shuchita Sancheti Garg has mapped out a boutique that bridges joy and delight indoors.

Walk Through an Experience

For Garg, designing the flagship store was a deeply personal project that allowed her to tap into her academic roots to showcase her brand's unique identity. "I studied interior designing from Parsons in New York, but I carry all bits of Jaipur with me. So that's what I wanted to show from the space as well," she says. The layout is deliberately theatrical. Visitors enter through a striking tunnel washed in vVyom red, the brand's signature colour, navigating fabric canopies and structural arches. This leads directly into an expansive bedding display spotlighting the brand's new Palace Stables collection. The range draws heavily from the world of Jaipur polo, mixing traditional bagicha (garden) prints with bold stripes and horse motifs.

Art of Craft

Every piece here relies exclusively on premium natural fibres, ranging from cottons and cotton silks to cotton velvets. While the brand utilises diverse printing techniques, including hand-block, screen and digital printing, it is the hand-stitched detailing that defines their soft furnishings. "We love to explore all sorts of crafts. We are doing
