

Modern Monarch

We have anchored this look (image, right) with a sleek round marble table, immediately layering it with a luxurious velvet table runner in deep emerald green. Adorned with Gulmarg-inspired floral prints and delicate French-style rose motifs, the textile sets a moody, sophisticated tone. Instead of stiff, symmetrical centrepieces, the floral arrangement here is deliberately deconstructed, channelling raw wilderness. Traditional South Indian flowers and seasonal fruits mingle with a curated collection of one-of-a-kind antique artefacts collected over the years, lending the table a beautiful sense of history and lived-in charm.

Maximalist Grazing Gala

For the second look (image, previous page), we have transformed a sprawling surface into a massive grazing table designed for endless festive chit-chat. My signature whimsical prints take centre stage on the crockery, beautifully offset by an eclectic mix of wild floral elements, interesting roots, and exposed stems.

Familiar Luxury

While both looks carry distinct personalities, they share a soulful DNA. Across both tables, we

THE FESTIVE CHEAT SHEET

Here's how you can recreate the look at home

- Signature Printed Runners: Use velvet or rich textiles to create a layered canvas
- Artisanal Dinnerware: Opt for illustrated plates that spark conversation
- Custom Tea Sets: Perfect for transitioning from family lunches to high-tea gossip
- Raw Artefacts: Mix in unique, weathered antiques to add instant character and grit
