

Waiting Lounge at Arq

HOSPITALITY TREND

about memory and The Lodhi about privacy, The St. Regis is about theatre—luxury as a performance staged nightly, on schedule.
Membership costs Upwards of ₹8 lakh per year

THE QUORUM
Gurugram · Mumbai · Hyderabad
Born from the concept of a 'quintessential third space,' The Quorum is India's most articulate answer to the modern creative-professional club. Its Gurugram flagship—expansive, intelligently designed—offers co-working studios, a podcast room, cocktail bars, terrace decks, and a cultural calendar that ranges from investment summits to intimate art soirées. The Quorum is where entrepreneurs and intellectuals quickly discover they are, in fact, the same person.
Membership costs Upwards of ₹6 lakh per year

SOHO HOUSE MUMBAI
Mumbai
The arrival of Soho House—the global club that began in London in 1995 as a home for the creative class—was a signal moment for Indian club culture. Mumbai's chapter, with its sea-facing rooftop, film club, curated art walks, and a membership drawn from cinema, fashion, music, and design, brought an entirely new emotional register to Indian membership clubs. Notably, Soho House has now earmarked Delhi as its next India outpost, a development that will reshape the capital's social architecture.

BELVEDERE
The Oberoi, New Delhi
Tucked within Delhi's most understated luxury address, Belvedere carries forward The Oberoi's signature philosophy — extreme comfort delivered without noise. Where other clubs compete on spectacle, Belvedere competes on restraint: a private drawing-room register of service, deep armchairs, and a wine and whisky list chosen with the same unfussy precision The Oberoi brings to everything else. Members move as easily into The Oberoi Spa's Eastern and Western therapies and infrared sauna, or the 24-hour fitness centre and heated pool, as they do into a chair by the fire — wellness here is an extension of the same understatement, never a separate department. It is the club for those who have tired of being seen and simply want to be looked after.

CLUB JOLIE'S
Mumbai
(Worli, Aditya Birla Group)
Jolie's is less a club and more a sensorial theatre—30,000 square feet of warm light, fine wine, live jazz featuring artists like Louis Banks, mental health workshops, handwoven textile showcases, and a cigar lounge for connoisseurs. Membership is by invitation, referral, or committee approval—an approach that keeps it genuinely intimate. Jolie's is where Mumbai's most curious minds come not to network, but to be surprised.
Membership costs Upwards of ₹5 lakh per year

BLVD CLUB
Bengaluru
Designed by Total Environment and built around a philosophy of slow, sustainable, intentional living, BLVD offers Bengaluru's entrepreneurial class something the city has rarely had: a space to decelerate. It remains among India's more premium offerings—and one that wears its values on its sleeve.
Membership costs Upwards of ₹6 lakh per year

D'MONDE
Delhi
Operating on a strict invitation-only basis, D'MONDE is perhaps Delhi's most discreet new club — present in the city's most well-heeled neighbourhoods, known to those who need to know. In a city where power is often performed loudly, D'MONDE performs silence.
