

Café Petiole

A pretty Somerset House café that doesn't need meat.

Chef Rishim Sachdeva's plant-first café offers a quick stop, but warrants lingering, because here, even a salad can feel like an actual lunch. But there's always more: the almost-all vegan Café Petiole in the gorgeous Somerset House will serve you roasted cauliflower, sweet potatoes, aubergine and chickpea hummus, mushroom sandwiches and baked treats in a room where pastel colours, bentwood furniture and hand-painted murals, present a scenic outing. The food is fresh, unfussy and easy to settle into. And then there is the Tendril tiramisu; because even the most virtuous lunch occasionally needs to end in mascarpone, or something very close to it.

Where 5 princes street W1B 2LF
Contact www.tendrilkitchen.co.uk
Meal for Two £90 (₹11,000)
Must try Chinatown purple potatoes & the butter bean dip with chilli garlic.

