

Where Old Meets New

A modern Japanese whisky that brings together tradition and reinvention, crafted for the moments we share today.

Toki means "Time" in Japanese. It is a concept rich in meaning across cultures, but especially in Japan, where deep respect for tradition exists alongside a constant spirit of reinvention.

Inspired by this interplay, TOKI brings together old and new, blending The House of Suntory's heritage with its pioneering spirit to create a whisky that feels both timeless and contemporary.

This festive season, Toki makes for a gift that hits the same note, familiar enough to feel like tradition, unexpected enough to spark conversation.

It's the bottle that gets passed around as stories are shared, the one that quietly becomes part of the evening. Gifting, after all, is its own kind of storytelling — and Toki Suntory Whisky comes with one worth telling.

Crafted by The House of Suntory, TOKI brings together whiskies from Yamazaki, Hakushu and Chita, each contributing its own distinctive character to a blend defined by balance, vibrancy and precision. Brought together with the same patience and precision that defines Suntory's approach to blending, malt and grain find their balance each note given its place. The result is a vivid blend that honours Japanese whisky-making tradition while embracing a more contemporary way of enjoying whisky.

On the palate, TOKI opens with green apple and citrus, settling into a smooth, oaky finish, quiet and unhurried, the way a good moment tends to be.

Like the Japan that inspired it, TOKI is made for versatility. Enjoy it neat, in its signature Highball, or as the foundation of something new. The Highball in particular captures TOKI's spirit perfectly: a classic serve reimagined for modern drinking occasions, where tradition and reinvention meet in a single glass.

Because the moments we remember most are rarely about the drink alone. They're about the people, conversations and memories shared around it.

This season, give a whisky inspired by the meeting of old and new. One rooted in Japanese craftsmanship, made for modern moments, and created to be shared.
