

Ties That Bind

Design house Kosh Studio untangles a fresh aesthetic narrative with the debut of its Knot Collection. Envisioned by designers Nidhi Gupta and Ketan Gupta, the series leverages elemental geometries, circles, cylinders and planes, into striking, architectural silhouettes. Crafted in rich solid wood with a deep charcoal matte stain, the line-up contrasts monolithic forms against tactile handwoven cane and warm textiles. Featured here is the Eddy Centre Table that explores balance through an unexpected dialogue of forms; sitting at the intersection of furniture and collectible design.

Light it Right

Indo-American cross-continental house Raíz Studio bridges modern abstraction with generational heritage via its latest decorative statement, the Monolith Candle Holder. Eschewing commercial outsourcing, the brand keeps its full product lifecycle entirely within its family-owned atelier in Moradabad, a city famed for its 400-year-old metalworking lineage. Forged in hand-cast aluminium and available in rich gold or sleek silver finishes, the piece pulls double duty as a functional light source and a standalone artistic centrepiece.

World Class

Delhi's Vikram Goyal Studio brings high-end Indian metalwork into global dialogue at Homo Faber 2026 in Venice. Collaborating with Nilufar Gallery, the studio showcases its nature-inspired Bagh collection within the historic Fondazione Giorgio Cini. Under the artistic direction of Es Devlin, the exhibit elevates freeform casting and sheet metal work from mere decorative flourishes into disciplined fine art traditions. Highlights include the sculptural, nickel-finished Bagh Mirror (featured here) and a bronze-brass side table inlaid with semi-precious stones. The showcase beautifully anchors traditional Mughal garden geometry inside a contemporary, global design landscape.
